

THE

BRIEF

Vol. 5, No. 5

An electronic update for the legal community providing a brief look at news in the Clerk of the Superior Court's Office

May 2009

Michael K. Jeanes,
Clerk of the Superior Court

Catch the Clerk on Twitter

The Clerk of the Court's Office can now send messages, known as "tweets" through the networking website, Twitter. Tweets are messages, no more than 140 characters in length, that can be sent to a designated cell phone or email address. This method of communication is the fastest way for the Clerk to distribute a message. Examples of possible tweets: planned website service outages, building evacuations, notices of changes to the eFiling Guidelines online and others. Register for a free account at Twitter.com and follow the Clerk's Office at: <http://twitter.com/MichaelKJeanes>.

The Clerk is on Facebook, too

Technology marches on, and where electronic methods can make improvements, you will find the Clerk's Office. Facebook, an online networking website, is another avenue where the Clerk's Office is updating issues that matter to you. From the Clerk's Facebook page, you can follow events in the Clerk's Office, such as upcoming CLEs, presentations and meetings where the Clerk is advancing the business of the courts, historical and interesting information, and more. From www.Facebook.com, search for "Michael K Jeanes," or link directly to: <http://www.facebook.com/home.php?#/pages/Michael-K-Jeanes/83022496372>.

Bringing eFile Training to You

Electronic filing has seen steady increases in the Superior Court in Maricopa County. To encourage more eFiling, the Clerk's Office is renewing its offer to provide onsite training to groups or law firms. Groups of 20 or more attorneys or legal support staff are encouraged to contact the Clerk's Office for a demonstration of the electronic filing system. Demonstrations generally last 90 minutes and include a basic overview of the eFiling process, including time for questions and answers. Presentations can be adapted to the needs of each audience, including stricter time limits. The Clerk's Office offers sessions at no cost to the customer as an introduction to electronic filing. A more comprehensive treatment of electronic filing is available through various CLEs. To schedule an onsite demonstration of the Clerk's eFiling Online system, contact Joe Silberschlag at 602-506-2171.

Email Requirement Update

The Supreme Court issued Administrative Order 2009-43, updating the email requirement that will take effect for attorneys on July 1, 2009. To ensure the Clerk's attorney database is current, please continue to provide the Clerk's Office directly with attorney contact information changes. To view the latest Administrative Order on the Supreme Court's website, visit <http://tinyurl.com/AO2009-43>.